FORMAT

The journal is published three times each year. Contributions are welcome from anthropologists and from people in other disciplines. Articles should be as short as is necessary to get the point over; as a general rule they should not exceed 5,000 words. Contributors are asked to follow the conventions for citations, notes and references used in the A.S.A. monographs.

Comments and correspondence concerning published articles are particularly welcome. These need not be long - there is provision for a Correspondence section in which short responses can be included.

The journal now also includes a Commentary section. This is designed to cover papers which are not necessarily articles, in the conventional sense - those, for example, which draw attention to a particular author or book, or which comment informally on a current issue in anthropology.

Communications should be addressed to the Editors, JASO, 51 Banbury Road, Oxford, OX2 6PF, England.
